

OPERATIONS "BOTTOMS UP"—Last of fifth grade girls exits at Jackson Township School yesterday with hand marking tender spot where she received injection of gamma globulin in first mass anti-polio inoculation in Monroe County. Shots were ordered when one student was stricken with polio a few days ago. Boys amused at girl's reaction have yet to face—or back up to—the needle. Youths at head of line appear doubtful or uncertain.

TAKING IT ALL IN is Howard Shick Jr., chin clutched in hand and eyes clamped shut while Dr. E. T. Horn presses plunger of hypodermic. Friend on table at left waits to take the plunge himself. A total of 105 were "shot." Rest of students will get shots today. Assisting were Mrs. Horn, Mrs. Marion Field, Mrs. Ann Shafer, Mrs. Betty Brader, all nurses.

GRIMACE—by Etta Johnson, 12, Appenzell, as needle makes itself felt. Youngsters took the shots better than many adults. Less than a half dozen cried.

GRIN—by Connie Frederick, 8, who tells Mrs. Horn, "It feels funny, sort of tickles." Nurses kidded youngsters out of fears, got most to admit injection wasn't so bad. At St. Luke's Hospital, student Arthur Koerner was in "fair condition" last night. Medical authorities hoped GG would keep his classmates healthy. (Staff Photos by O'wyler)

Saxton Upsets Gavilan To Win Welterweight Title

Judges Vote Unanimously For Underdog

By JACK HAND

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 (AP)—Sturdy Johnny Saxton, fighting a cautious counter-punching battle, stripped listless Kid Gavilan of his world welterweight title tonight on a unanimous decision in a dull 15-round bout at Convention Hall.

The 24-year-old new champion, a New York Golden Glove grad, won the votes of all three officials after a battle marred by much holding, wrestling, tugging and shoving. At times it looked more like a wrestling match than a fight.

"It was a lousy fight," said Chairman Frank Wiener of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission. "But I guess they did as well as they could."

The disappointing crowd of 7,999, paying a gross gate of $57,121 to see the nationally televised bout (Philadelphia area blacked out) cheered the upset victory by a boy who has done most of his main bout fighting in Philadelphia.

From time to time through the dull battle, boos rang out as the fans reacted by stomping on the floor, trying to stimulate a little more action.

Only in the closing minutes, when the Cuban Keed staged his only real Gavilan-style burst of action did the customers warm up. The final burst had them cheering at the end, the only real outburst of the scrap.

Saxton fought a counter-punching scrap, moving inside and trying to batter Gavilan when he surged in. Sometimes he succeeded, but often he did nothing more than tie up his man for a prolonged wrestling session. Hans Schmidt and Antonio Rocca could have done much better.

Nixon Charges Dems Planned Socialized U.S.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 (AP)—Vice President Nixon said last night that when the Eisenhower administration took office in January last year it found the Democrats had left in the files "a virtual blueprint for socializing America."

This blueprint, Nixon said, included "spending plans for adding 40 billion dollars to the national debt between 1952 and 1956."

He said it called for "socialized medicine, socialized housing, socialized agriculture, socialized water and power and, perhaps the most disturbing of all, socializing of America's greatest source of power—atomic energy."

Snow Falls At Scranton And Daleville

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP)—Snow swirled over parts of northeastern Pennsylvania today, but a rise in temperature turned it into a drizzly rain.

The Scranton Weather Bureau said snow mixed with rain fell on the city at 6 a.m. and continued 30 minutes.

State police said snow fell at Daleville and Fleetville in the outlying districts but melted as quickly as it struck the ground.

The temperature at the time was around 38.

Throughout the state, weather took on the complexion of winter as temperatures dropped below the freezing mark in many spots overnight.

Banker Accused

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 (AP)—Edward B. McCall, described as "a trusted employee for 26 years," today was charged with approving loans totaling a quarter million dollars by the Girard Trust and Corn Exchange Bank and spending the $45,000 he obtained himself on "wine, women and song."

Conference Must Hurdle Two Problems

PARIS, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Big Three Western powers made progress tonight toward giving sovereignty back to West Germany, but faced a menacing deadline between Germany and France over the Saar. Optimism expressed yesterday was tempered sharply.

The old French-German dispute over the future of the Saar was only one of two major problems facing the Western nations gathering here in increasing numbers to work out progressively the accords which they hope will make the West a solid bloc against Communist aggression.

Besides the Saar, there arose again the problem of how to control the amount of arms which West Germany will have, or will be able to make, once she becomes a nation allied in friendship with her former enemies of the West and free in almost every sense of the word.

Ministers of the four powers met for two hours in the late afternoon to act on more than 100 pages of intricate text designed to make West Germany free, only not quite. The meeting was held at the Paris headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Solutions were proposed for the few remaining issues," said a brief communiqué. "The experts were asked to modify the texts accordingly for resubmission to the four ministers Oct. 21." That's tomorrow.

The sight of four Western powers—West Germany, France, Britain and the United States—sitting together was something new in the NATO conference halls.

Rains Peril Houses

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Oct. 20 (AP)—Owners of two homes worth more than $25,000 each watched helplessly today as giant landslides caused by heavy rains threatened to hurl the buildings down a 100-foot bluff into Lake Michigan.

Cancer Society Reveals Plans For Mass Chest X-Rays

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—The American Cancer Society told today of plans for mass chest X-rays across the country, and gravely advised all men over 45 to have one twice a year.

Dr. Charles S. Cameron, the society's medical and scientific director, said meanwhile that the occurrence of lung cancer among smokers has reached an alarming rate—and is increasing rapidly.

Mefford R. Runyon, executive vice president, said the X-ray program is being studied by committees of the American Medical Assn.

Runyon said the cancer death rate for women is declining, largely because of greater public and professional knowledge, but that for men it still is going up.

Nine Arrested As Reds In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 20 (AP)—Nine Communist leaders were arrested today in a pre-dawn roundup by FBI agents on charges of plotting forcible overthrow of the government. The Reds indignantly cried "foul."

Another Puerto Rican Communist leader was seized simultaneously in New York. The group apprehended here included Juan Santos-Rivera, a Moscow-trained Communist, member of the party since 1932 and its former president.

The FBI expressed the belief arrests would cripple the party apparatus in this island which got commonwealth status in 1952 after more than a half century as a U. S. territory.

Santos-Rivera, 51, called the arrests vicious. He told reporters the party never advocated overthrowing the government by force.

Miner Plunges 140 Feet, Only Slightly Injured

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP)—Joseph Debias, of Trescow, rolled and fell 140 feet to the bottom of a hard coal open-pit stripping operation near Jendo today and lived to tell about it.

An oiler on a large electric shovel which is stripping topsoil from coal seams, Debias slipped while walking near the A. E. Dick Construction Co. equipment on property of the Jendo-Highland Coal Co.

The shovel operator dropped his huge bucket into the pit and Debias was able to clamber into to be hoisted to the surface. He was taken to the state hospital here where preliminary examination showed he suffered only abrasions and contusions.

Water Gap Discusses School Union

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

DELAWARE WATER GAP—New questions concerning the proposed union of the Stroud Township, Delaware Water Gap, and Stroudsburg school districts were raised last night at the third "town meeting" discussion held in the three districts.

Questions not touched upon at previous meetings in either Stroudsburg or Stroud Township followed the presentation of the subject by Henry J. LaBar of the Delaware Water Gap School Board; Walter Sebring, assistant county superintendent of schools; and Herbert Crane, president of the Stroudsburg School Board. The meeting was held at the firehouse with about 40 persons present.

"Would the new union school district be under the county superintendent of schools, or would it have its own superintendent as Stroudsburg now does?" was a new question brought up at the meeting.

Another was "How long, after union, would the Delaware Water Gap school be maintained as it is now, with two or three grades in a room?"

"How can you say that Delaware Water Gap would have equal representation when its population is so much smaller than either Stroudsburg or Stroud Township?" was a more blunt way of putting questions raised at other meetings.

In answering the first question on whether the new district would be under the county superintendent or work as an independent district with its own superintendent, Mr. Crane said that that was the first decision which would confront the union board which, if the vote on Nov. 2 is in favor in all three districts, would come into existence on the fourth Monday of July, 1955.

"That 17-man board, composed of all the directors of all three boards, would have to decide," he said, "and would then elect a superintendent or a supervising principal depending on that decision."

Petersen Indicted On Charge He Leaked Defense Secrets To Dutch; Pleads Innocent

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Oct. 20 (AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted Joseph S. Petersen Jr., on charges of obtaining defense secrets "with intent or reason to believe" they would be used to injure this country and aid another.

The tall, bespectacled former trusted employee of the super-secret National Security Agency answered the indictment with a firm "not guilty."

Continued at liberty under $10,000 bond, Petersen told reporters: "I plead not guilty and I am not guilty."

The indictment did not mention the Netherlands, disclosed only yesterday as the foreign country involved in the case.

U. S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan, before whom the three-count indictment was returned, did not set a date for Petersen's trial. The judge said he will hear arguments on defense motions next Tuesday and set the trial date after they are disposed of.

Petersen had waited around the courtroom for three days while the grand jury deliberated his case. The first count of the indictment alleged Petersen "did conceal and remove" certain documents, make and obtain certain documents, writings and notes connected with the national defense, to wit: documents, writings and notes relating to communications intelligence."

He did this, the grand jury charged, "with intent or reason to believe" the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation.

The second count said Petersen "knowingly and wilfully used in a manner prejudicial to the safety and interest of the United States classified information concerning the communications activities of the United States and of a foreign government."

The third count charged Petersen "did wilfully and unlawfully conceal and remove" certain documents.

Seven Jurors Seated At Trial Of Dr. Sheppard; Attorney For Defense Roars Protests

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20 (AP)—Defense Atty. William J. Corrigan blew up in court today at the murder trial of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard. He roared at the top of his voice: "I know they're going to bring Susan Hayes into this courtroom."

"I know what evidence they have," shouted Corrigan as he waved toward the state's side of the counsel table. "I know how Susan Hayes has been blasted in the papers."

Then Corrigan angrily refused to question a prospective juror any further and allowed him to be seated as the sixth juror.

Mrs. Anna W. Foote, housewife and mother of five children, was accepted as the seventh juror just before the trial ended for the day. She was the third woman accepted.

Seating of the seventh juror before the overnight recess raised the possibility a full panel might be obtained before the end of the week. One was chosen Monday, two yesterday and four today.

Sheppard, 30-year-old osteopath, is on trial for his life. The state accuses him of beating his wife Marilyn, 31, to death last July 4. He denies the slaying. He said his wife was the victim of a bushy haired intruder, who knocked him out when he came to her aid. Mrs. Sheppard was four months pregnant. They had a son, 6.

The state claims the slaying followed by four months a love affair between the handsome Sheppard and Miss Hayes, 24, a onetime aide in the same hospital with him.

Earlier in the day the defense won a minor and short-lived victory by getting onto the record a juror's opinion of Miss Hayes' involvement in the case.

Free Nations Ready To Meet Aggression

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Eisenhower declared tonight his administration "has come far" toward winning a lasting world peace. But he pledged that the free world's "awesome" military might always will be ready to deal with Communist aggression.

The President said he is aware "the road ahead is long and difficult, but we shall continue to press on toward our goal."

In a nationwide television and radio address prepared for delivery at a Hotel Sheraton-Astor dinner commemorating the 300th anniversary of Jewish life in the United States, Eisenhower spoke of the free world's might in this way:

"In the diversities of freedom are a tremendous might—a might which the imposed system of communism can never match."

The White House termed the President's address "nonpolitical," but the timing of it served to recall former President Truman's attack last Saturday night on the Eisenhower administration's handling of foreign policy.

Truman called then for election of a Democratic-controlled Congress Nov. 2 to put an end to what he called a Republican spectacle of "blunder after blunder" in foreign affairs.

Picking a world peace theme, the President declared:

"The pursuit of peace is at once our religious obligation and our national policy. Peace in freedom—where all men dwell in security—is the ideal toward which our foreign policy is directed."

The President told his audience that standing in the way of enduring peace, "the principle and continuing factor is the persistently aggressive design of Moscow and Peking which shows no evidence of genuine change despite their professed desire to relax tensions and to preserve peace."

He added: "Continuing, also, is the breadth and scope of the Communist attack; no weapon is absent from their arsenal, whether intended for destruction of cities and people or for the destruction of truth, integrity, loyalty."

The President said that in the effort to achieve a durable peace, "we must help to harmonize the divergent views of the many free, self-governing nations, and without encroaching upon rights which all people cherish."

"For in the diversities of freedom are a tremendous might—a might which the imposed system of communism can never match."

The President called the free world's growing strength "a trust on which rests the hope of free men."

He said America's military establishment never can remain static in either size or character. "With constantly changing dangers, with rapidly changing developments in the science of warfare, our military forces, too, must change. From atomic submarine, from atomic cannon, from new weapon systems to new military organizations, this giant, complex structure must respond to the current needs of our time."

Martin Says GOP Victory Vital To Ike

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 (AP) — Sen. Edward Martin (R-Pa.) said tonight the loss of three Republican Congressmen in the Nov. 2 general election could mean Democratic control of the U.S. House of Representatives.

"That is why I say the stakes in this election are exceedingly high," he said. "That is why a smashing Republican victory in Pennsylvania is so important."

Martin, in a speech prepared for delivery over a statewide television network, asked his audience if the program of President Eisenhower's administration should be destroyed and then added:

"Without a Republican majority in Congress, the magnificent program so brilliantly launched by President Eisenhower will be destroyed by partisan politics. It would mean that Democrats, hostile to the President and hostile to Republican policies, will be in control of all legislation."

In the statewide political campaign, he said, the choice is between "Republican accomplishment and Democratic broken promises, graft, corruption and incompetence."

Martin then said: "Under four successive Republican administrations, Pennsylvania has made tremendous strides in every function of state government — public schools, hospitals, mental health and welfare institutions, the care of crippled and retarded children, stream clearance, highways, increased benefits for labor and programs to strengthen agriculture and industry."

"We have done all these things and still our per capita tax is one of the lowest in the United States."

At Sunbury, Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood, GOP candidate for governor, said the Democratic record on taxation is "one of the most shameful chapters" in the history of the United States.

Turning to national issues in the campaign, Wood said in a prepared speech at a Republican rally here that voters should keep the Democratic tax record in mind when Democrats talk about lower taxes.

"Every time they talked about cutting the cost of government and reducing taxes, they came up with new schemes to dip deeper into the pockets of the workingman," said Wood.

"Not only did they place a new and crushing burden of taxes on the individual, but they also grabbed a larger and larger share of the earnings of business and industry, driving risk capital into hiding and destroying hundreds of thousands of jobs."

Wood said there is "no further doubt" that the Democrats would adopt the same course if elected to control in Harrisburg.

At Harrisburg, Atty. Gen. Frank F. Truscott, GOP nominee for lieutenant governor, said he has received reports that the Democratic campaign is "in danger of collapse."

Truscott said he had received reports from "authoritative sources" that revealed there was "serious dissension" in the Democratic ranks.

Incredible Hoax

Whatever the action of the Republican party of Utah in the matter of Congressman Douglas Stringfellow's incredible hoax on his fellow countrymen in the matter of his completely untrue stories of OSS service behind the German lines, the fantastic affair is difficult to understand.

We cannot speak for the congressmen's constituents in Utah any more than they can speak for Pennsylvanians, but we can well imagine they are rather unhappy about the whole thing.

Congressman Stringfellow, to review the story briefly, has been building up his story of heroic action as a "cloak and dagger" member of the Office of Strategic Services operating back of enemy lines in World War II. The truth of his active service involves no combat as such, but crippling injuries received during his few weeks as a private in southern France when he stepped on a land mine.

One must sympathize with the youthful Congressman insofar as his wound is concerned, but one cannot view with warm approval the idea of a man who sits in the House of Representatives becoming capable of perpetrating a grand hoax on his fellow Americans.

The Law and the Lawless

Pennsylvania's big lake city of Erie long has been known as a "wide-open town."

A "wide-open town," whether it's Erie or anyplace else, is a town where it is almost as easy to play the numbers and engage in assorted other gambling activities as it is to buy a suit of clothes. It's all a matter of knowing where to go, and in a "wide-open town" the gambling operators do everything but hang out a neon sign. Just about everybody knows where they're "in business." You would naturally assume that "just about everybody" would include the police and other authorities, who are charged with keeping a hand on the pulse of a town. They also are charged with enforcing the law, and the numbers and other gambling activities are well defined as illegal. What gives?

Erie County's district attorney says it was a matter of "who gives" and "who takes." And he has directed the filing of an array of charges, accusing gamblers of handing out bribes and the city's No. 1 public official, the mayor, and two top police officers of taking them.

Gambling was no peanuts operation for this lake city of 130,000. The DA is unfolding a story of a numbers and pinball machine take of $20 millions a year. He is leveling accusations of an Erie-picked being winnowed out and hand-viced to keep honest policemen from getting a shot at enforcement of the law—a vice squad that always looked the other way while the elaborately organized gambling syndicate operated wide open.

Erie's mayor, under the Pennsylvania third-class city code, is in complete charge of the police department. At first flush, the case involving him and the two police officers may appear open and shut. But under our system of justice, of course, there is no open and shut deal for anyone. An accused man is presumed innocent until determined otherwise by due process of law in our courts. And the accused mayor and policemen deny breaking the law.

If they are not guilty of actual violation of the law, as the district attorney charges, in accepting money not to enforce the law, the fact remains that they certainly must have been derelict in their duty in not recognizing or in not doing anything about an organized gambling system operating in full blast in their midst.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Maybe We Do Too Much For No Return; Arousing Hidden Motive Suspicions

There can no longer be any doubt about the general European dislike for Americans and many minds speculate upon the phenomenon. Some say that it is due to Mc Carthyism which offends the European intellectual, most of whom have so long been in the strait jacket of Stalinism that they react nervously to any expose involving events as far back as the 1930's. Others really accept "American imperialism" as a fact. Soviet propaganda having established in their minds the belief that the United States must suffer a deep depression if war and the preparation for war ceases.

can be cured because it's in their blood, it's constitutional. It is the craze for improving us, for making us kinder to each other, juster, richer, happier.

This, of course, is human nature acting normally. It is a paraphrase of the adage "God helps those who help themselves," which is so true because those who are helped too ardently by others become dependents and hate being dependents. That is why the do-gooder is so despised, even by those who gain advantage from his benefactions. Although he means well, he is generally a pain in the neck. Alcoholics Anonymous discovered very early that only an alcoholic can save an alcoholic because there is no one whom the drunken man, who knows he is wrong, hates more than one who never does wrong.

Perhaps if our teen-agers were members of good gangs there would be fewer crime problems among them. Good gangsters could do no worse than the sociologists and psychiatrists have done with young people whose difficulties arise not from lack of knowledge but from an inability to overcome the resistance of youth to the directives toward perfection.

Montanelli pursues his theme: " . . . They (the American people) never insisted on their government obtaining any direct material advantages from their victorious intervention. They asked for no colonies, no commercial servitude. On the contrary, they accepted further taxation to succeed the defeated. All they asked was that these defeated nations should become better, that they should love each other and America, renounce their rivalries, carry out social reforms, and use DDT and refrigerators! And this was their mistake. From this developed the antagonism towards America."

How utterly true! For more than a century before 1948, Americans spent, so far as can be estimated, nearly $200,000,000, giving the Chinese people schools, hospitals, universities, churches, etc., etc. So far as I can discover, neither Communist nor Soviet Russia ever spent anything on the Chinese people but took much away from them. Nevertheless, Red China is not our friend and Lin Piao's army killed our sons in Korea at the behest of the Kremlin and the ordinary Chinese offered not even a show of resistance when the Communists tortured his good friends, the missionaries who devoted their lives to his improvement.

Maybe we do too much for no return and arouse the suspicion that we must have hidden motive or we should not do so much and be so anxious about it. It is like the British lady who once explained American aid to Great Britain to me as evidence of British kindness to the United States, as otherwise all our people would be out of work. I asked facetiously: "Would it not be cheaper to spend the money on public works or even to put one-sixth of our work force on the dole?"

I don't think she liked me after that any more than Aneurin Bevan likes to remember how much it cost the United States to keep his party in power.

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

We have always wanted to make a load of money and have found a way. We are going into the balsa raft business. Following the successful trip on one for 115 days during which William Willis, now in Pago Pago, Samoa, kept away from it all and wholly out of touch with civilization, we are convinced there is a terrific public demand for them. Think what a balsa raft meant to Mr. Willis.

1. Complete escape from TV panels, quiz shows, politicians, parking problems, Gallup pollsters, phone bills, campaign speeches, and atomic bomb threats! 2. One hundred and fifteen days of freedom from Zsa Zsa and Porfirio. Vishinsky's speeches, arguments over McCarthy, plugs for detergents, filter tips and electric appliances and the question: "Isn't this the day you MOW THE LAWN, DEAR?" 3. Not a moment for months when he could be urged to enter a box-top contest, call Bigelow, take the folks on a hot weekend trip in heavy traffic, fix the awnings, or get out the paraphernalia for the outdoor barbecue! No buzzers buzzing! Nobody making a pitch for better looking hair or the smoothest of all shaves!

Nowhere a voice saying: "Could you DROP WHAT YOU'RE DOING and run to the delicatessen for me?" No feeling of inferiority because you can't get two for "The Panama Game" or "Kiss me!" TONIGHT! No possible need to dress for dinner, catch the 5:07 or check the car mileage! No conferences! No worry over a ceiling leak!

Balsa rafts, here we come! We intend to be the Ford of the raft industry. The popular priced Model T Balsa to fit any pocketbook! Mr. Willis carried a parrot and a cat. Well, the economic situation being what it is, we expect to charge extra for them. Accessories, as it were. We think we can turn out a general utility balsa raft for around $1,000, without parrot or cat. Of course, a balsa raft without a shelter, a stove, a rudder and a sail will be useless, but just the same they will be listed as extras. The balsa-raft customer will wind up paying twice our list price, but a trend is a trend. (Fog lights, power steering, wrap-around windshield and undercoating? Send for our balsa log circular.)

P. K. H. wants to know if "The Tender Trap" is a play about Charlie Wilson's off-the-cuff speeches . . . Charlie Chaplin says he is to make a "very funny picture about a man who comes to America expecting everything and runs into terrible disillusionment." . . . Gets no break whatever, returns to London and doesn't know where his next hammer and sickle are coming from, eh? . . .

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

Even Electioneering Politicians Are Lucid

Every time I touch politics in my column I get howls from my syndicate, various newspaper editors who run it, and from my wife. "Don't," they say. "There are enough political columns in the papers now. There are the editorials. There are the political speeches.

There is politics on television, on radio and through loudspeakers in the streets. Let your readers forget politics for a while. Give them something to think about, to smile about, to cry about. But not politics please."

That is, of course, one reason why I don't write about politics. After all, my editors are the ones who pay the bills for my column and my wife is the one who uses the money to keep house for me. So both of their opinions are worth a lot.

But there is another reason. I don't know the first thing about politics. To be perfectly frank, if anybody asked me to give them a definition of the two parties—the Democratic and the Republican one, I couldn't do it.

It seems to me that most people who belong to a party don't know much more—or any more—about why they belong to it or what it represents than I do.

If you are a Southerner you belong to the Democrats, unless you are a Confederate or an outlaw or a rebel or something.

If you are a Vermonter or a New Hampshirean, you are a Republican. Why? Don't ask me, please. It must be for the same reason that cabbage is always served with corned beef, ham with eggs, sauerkraut with frankfurters. I asked my wife the other night to give me some asparagus with my corned beef, and I think she was tempted to call the doctor. She seemed to think I had a temperature.

One thing I do know, however. The two national committee chairmen and practically all the candidates for office during pre-election time seem to have lost all their sense of balance, and they seem to think that all American voters are lunatics.

They call each other liars. The Democrats call the President harsh names and accuse the Vice President of falsehoods.

The Democrats also say that the Republican administration has been a curse to the country. The Republicans hint at 20 years of treason and inefficiency.

Do these fellows think for a moment that we non-politicians are convinced by those ridiculous statements? Do they believe that all that blating and screaming and shouting is going to determine our vote?

I have never believed that old claim of the amateur psychologists (and many professional ones, too) that the average American has the mind of a 12-year-old child. That may be true of politicians and political candidates—but only during pre-election time.

Leonard Hall, the Republican chairman, said that there is no such thing as the "common man." "In our book," he added, "he's an uncommon man who deserves individual opportunity, a chance to grow and expand, a man who must have his independence and his freedom."

You see, even an electioneering politician has lucid moments every now and then.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Things had reached such a pass under Communist misrule in Prague that one poor fellow decided life no longer was worth living. He stretched himself across a railroad track on the main line and was discovered there, munching dolefully on a loaf of bread, by a Muscovite.

Leonard Hall, the Republican chairman, said that there is no such thing as the "common man." "In our book," he added, "he's an uncommon man who deserves individual opportunity, a chance to grow and expand, a man who must have his independence and his freedom."

You see, even an electioneering politician has lucid moments every now and then.

So all right, things are going to pot," answered a commuter to a fellow who occupied a seat with him on the 8:28, and never stopped kicking about conditions from White Plains to Grand Central Station. "Why don't you write your congressman?" "What good would that do?" countered the kicker. "I'm my congressman."

Registration Figures Favor GOP Candidates

Washington, Oct. 21—Republican campaigners have received important good news.

Registration figures generally favor the GOP.

That's the encouraging word which National Chairman Leonard Hall has sent out in a private memorandum to candidates, leaders and workers in every part of the country.

In another widely-distributed document, titled "Campaign Notes And Suggestions," they are urged to tackle the unemployment issue head-on.

"Some favorable straws are in the wind indicating improvement in unemployment," the brochure advises, "and this should be vigorously stressed by local candidates."

Basis of Hall's optimistic view of registration figures is that voting this year will be less than in 1952, and in some cases even below 1950; therefore, if Republicans will put their shoulders to the wheel and win the "party vote," they will win.

"All signs point to a great apathy among voters," Hall says in his unpublished memo. "Registration figures show a nationwide drop of approximately 10 percent in eligible voters. This trend can be made to work to the advantage of Republican candidates, if state and local organizations devote full time to getting out the 'party vote.'"

"All organizations and candidates should concentrate from now until November 2 in seeing that registered Republicans go to the polls. Candidates should concentrate on addressing party rallies and organization meetings. Requests for speakers for party meetings will be given priority over others by the National Committee. . . . Control of both the House and the Senate may rest on the success of local organizations in getting out Republican voters."

In advising candidates to face up squarely to the unemployment question, the National Committee points out that the number of jobs has steadily declined in the past three months.

"This should be vigorously emphasized to counteract Democratic claims that unemployment has greatly increased during the past year," the GOP pamphlet declares. "Further, it should be stressed that there are no large stagnant pools of unemployment in the country. It can be cited that of the 3,100,000 unemployed only 800,000 have been out of work 15 weeks or longer. This can be compared with conditions that existed after the Korean war boom had gotten underway in September 1950, when there were still 600,000 who had been out of work for 15 weeks or longer."

Note: The campaign plans of both President Eisenhower and Vice-President Nixon have been revised to fit in with the strategy of bearing down strong on getting out the GOP vote. Both will address more party groups during the remainder of the campaign than was originally contemplated. Nixon's speaking schedule, particularly, has been revamped to do that.

Politics — Both parties are warily awaiting the monthly crop report of the Agriculture Department, due October 29. It could have important impact on the tense congressional battle, particularly in rural districts. Last month's report showed a two percent decline in farm prices. . . . Latest issue of the Townsend Old Age Pension Journal claims that oldsters can decide the election. States Leonard M. Leonard, editor, "If all American citizens 60 or older voted together, they could control the election of senators and representatives, the governors of most states, and members of legislatures in 21 states."

Nevada's Lieutenant Governor Cliff Jones is directly involved in a series of sensational disclosures by the Las Vegas Sun. Jones, who isn't running for reelection, got himself named Democratic National Committeeman in a "smoke-filled room" coup following the recent death of Senator Pat McCarran, with whom he had been closely allied. The Sun charges that Jones is passing out the word that he is the "new big juice" of the state and will control the granting of liquor and gambling licenses. Meanwhile, Ernest Brown, whom Republican Governor Charles Russell appointed to fill McCarran's seat until January, has announced he will retain the late Democrat's large Washington staff. This move has politics of both parties baffled; they are wondering whom the staff will support—Brown or his Democratic opponent, Alan Bible, a McCarran protégé.

"Nor will successful lawyers be willing to serve on the bench if they are faced with the prospect of being compelled to engage in a bitter campaign for re-election and possibly forced to resume the practice of law ten years later when they are not only that much older but have lost their clientele in the meantime."

"For these reasons, therefore, the Pennsylvania Bar Association is strongly in favor of the reelection of judges who have made a creditable record, as have those involved in this instance."

Let's look at the record of these three judges:

Judge Rhodes served 20 years. He was elected in 1934 and 1944. He's been president judge since 1947. He was representative in general assembly and district attorney in Monroe County.

Judge Ross has served ten years. He was also State Treasurer and Auditor General.

Judge Woodside was named judge in Dauphin County in 1941 and served to '51 when he was made Attorney General of the State. He has been on Superior Court bench since early 1953.

Sitting Judges Question

The Pennsylvania Bar Association's aggressive decision to do something about keeping "sitting judges" in service to the people of Pennsylvania, or in the districts in which they serve, has some interesting reasoning behind it.

J. Campbell Brandon, of Butler, Pa., president of the state association, said the appointment of a state-wide committee, complemented by committees of local Bar Associations, to work for reelection of three members of Superior Court seeking re-election, is founded on a number of premises.

He cites them in this manner: First, the three judges: Judge Chester H. Rhodes of Stroudsburg; Judge F. Clair Ross and Judge Robert E. Woodside, in the eyes of the State Bar Association are "eminently qualified for the judicial offices they now hold."

"The Pennsylvania Bar Association has consistently advocated taking judges out of politics, and one requisite to the accomplishment of that end is making judicial tenure secure."

"A judge should be able to devote all of his time and attention to his judicial duties." Brandon observed "without having to worry about reelection."

"Furthermore," he added, "if a judge confines himself strictly to the discharge of his legal duties during a ten-year term, as he should, he loses his political contacts and is handicapped in a campaign for re-election."

"Nor will successful lawyers be willing to serve on the bench if they are faced with the prospect of being compelled to engage in a bitter campaign for re-election and possibly forced to resume the practice of law ten years later when they are not only that much older but have lost their clientele in the meantime."

"For these reasons, therefore, the Pennsylvania Bar Association is strongly in favor of the reelection of judges who have made a creditable record, as have those involved in this instance."

Hurricane Gives Pupils Good Opportunity To Study Weather

MONROE COUNTY'S recent brush with Hurricane Hazel had one beneficial effect, at least — it gave Clearview sixth graders a chance to study idiosyncrasies in weather right on the scene.

The class has been discussing weather as a science project for several weeks. Various terms were outlined for them before the hurricane ever arrived — air pressure, causes of winds, humidity, temperature and their effect in producing changes of weather.

Instrument readings were taken during Hazel's visit to this area. From forecasts and these readings, the pupils were able to trace the storm's progress almost from its first appearance along the Atlantic coast line.

ROY E. FURMAN for LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Roy E. Furman, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, has been interested all of his adult life in the problems of government, particularly at the state level. Elected to the State House of Representatives in 1932, he immediately began to play a prominent part in legislative affairs and to be noted both for his understanding of state problems and his diligence in advancing helpful legislation. Among the new laws in the enactment of which he played an important role were the first unemployment compensation act and the legislation authorizing the Pennsylvania Turnpike. He was reelected in 1934, 1936, 1938, and 1940. He also served as a member of the General State Authority, the Local Government Commission, and the Commission on Interstate Cooperation.

After retiring from the legislature to return to his construction business, which he had established in 1924 in Waynesburg, Mr. Furman maintained his interest in politics and government, and served successively as Greene County's Democratic Chairman and as State Committee member. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Waynesburg College, a former President of the Waynesburg Chamber of Commerce, and active in numerous other civic organizations.

A native of Greene County, Mr. Furman was educated in the Greene County public schools and then graduated from Waynesburg College. He is married to the former Mary Kelley and has two children.

Mr. Furman's previous legislative experience and his wide knowledge of the state government, together with his extensive business experience, will make him an ideal Lieutenant Governor.

Civil Defense Asks Citizens To Pull Blinds During Air Alert Scheduled Next Week

MONROE COUNTY CIVIL Defense workers yesterday moved forward with plans for the new-type State-wide alert next week. The "new" thing about the alert is a "pull-the-blinds" feature which has been omitted from past alerts and CD exercises.

Executive CD Director Paul Crown said the new regulation will be one of the most important points in the coming unannounced test.

Water Gap Discusses School Union

the present seven members from Stroudsburg, five from Water Gap and five from Stroud Township would make all of the original decisions in setting up the union district program, he pointed out.

Actually, the matter of representation is largely academic, Crane said, since school problems cross boundary lines and are area problems concerning the basic groups sending pupils to the high school on W. Main St.

Challenged by the second question: "How can a candidate from Delaware Water Gap compete with a candidate from the larger populated districts?" his answer was in two parts.

First, Water Gap would be guaranteed at least one "component member," which is something it doesn't have now with no representation at all for the important last six years of their children's school life.

Second, in choosing the four directors-at-large, the electors would be voting for the man not the district.

Even now, Crane pointed out, J. L. Cohen of the Stroudsburg School board, works in Delaware Water Gap; Fred Shoemaker of the Delaware Water Gap Board works in East Stroudsburg. "Old boundary lines are breaking down," he said.

"How long will the present school set-up of several grades to a teacher continue in Water Gap?" got less specific answers.

None of the speakers would make definite commitments, but all of them agreed that, under union, it would be possible to shift some of the young children in the Poplar Valley area who now make the long bus-ride from there over Godfrey's ridge through Stroudsburg to Clearview and perhaps send them to Delaware Water Gap. In turn some of the older Water Gap students could be taken to another school in the district.

All three pointed out that every available building and every teacher in the three districts would be needed, but with union a better gradation of schools was possible.

LaBar presided at the meeting, reviewing many of the questions covered at meetings in other districts.

"Two major questions confront us," he said, "how to provide better education for our children, and to do it without adding taxes the people can't afford to pay."

All 17 members of the three district boards have endorsed the program, he emphasized, and they represented a good cross section of the district.

In this connection, Mr. Crane pointed out that in urging union, six of the directors were eliminating themselves from the board when their terms expire.

He outlined the educational advantages in kindergarten, hot lunch, better facilities, enlarged curriculum, and closer ties, and the financial advantages in increased state appropriations and more efficient management.

Walter Sebring also urged union as the most efficient way of working together, better than either merger or jointure, which he termed "an educational monstrosity" and at its best a stepping stone for union.

Crane spoke particularly of financial advantages citing figures previously reported, and answering questions concerned with Delaware Water Gap's financial part in that section.

Nurses Make 270 Visits In September

A TOTAL OF 270 visits were made during September by Public Health Nurses, it was announced last night.

The nurses traveled 932 miles on their visits.

The visits were made by a staff of two, with some 52 substitute hours listed.

Many patients were not given as many visits as they wished, according to the report, because of a vacancy on the staff.

Directors of the Monroe County Department of Public Health Nursing approved the hiring of another full-time nurse at this month's meeting Tuesday night. Those interested should apply to Mrs. Virginia DePuy, executive director, Finance committee recommended that the organization on an experimental basis should try the one-year contract method of financing instead of the individual visit financing which has been the method up to the present.

Annual open meeting for December. Mrs. Leon Koster was appointed nominating committee chairman. The nursing committee was named to plan the program.

Presiding at the session was William H. Clark. A report was given on a visit by Elizabeth J. White of the National League for Nursing.

Boy's Attitude Toward Parents Revealed During Test At Center

(This is the second part of the fifth in a series of stories based on actual work done by the 17 member agencies of Youth Community Chest. Each is devoted to an isolated case—but each is also typical of the valuable work done by all of the agencies. This story is about Harry and Alma Weinter, their son Jim and his treatment by the Child Guidance Center. The names have been changed. So have some of the events.)

By LEONARD RANDOLPH

WHILE HER son Jim was having his first, unsuccessful interview with the Child Guidance Center psychiatrist, Alma Weinter was having one of her own, equally unsuccessful, with the social worker in another office.

Mrs. Weinter was uncooperative. The worker, who was trying to find the key to the mother's attitude toward her son, got spiteful answers to many of her questions.

In the end the worker tried to explain, as thoroughly as possible, the importance of Alma's attitude, not only toward her son himself, but also toward his treatment at the Center.

The interview ended on an awkward note. There was a heavy tone of defiance in Alma Weinter's voice when she told the worker:

"I want to make something clear to you, now—perfectly clear. The only reason I'm here is because I was asked to come. I did not expect to have to answer questions about myself and my relationships with my husband when I came. I'm not sure I like this idea at all and I'm not sure I'll be back. You can do as you want to with Jimmy, but I see no reason for going through all this—this junk myself."

"Mrs. Weinter," the social worker began, patiently. "We want very much to help your son and we hope that we shall. But this sort of thing is difficult. It takes a lot of time. And it sometimes seems painful."

"We've found from past experience that it is impossible to understand the child or his problem unless we can also understand his home environment. We know we can't hope to solve a child's problem unless we first find the root of the trouble," the social worker continued. "Most of the time the root grows from misunderstanding or hurt within the family."

There was a pause. Then the worker said: "To completely understand Jimmy's problem I'm sure we'll need your help constantly—and, eventually, we'll also need to talk with Jimmy's father."

The social worker knew from her talk with Jimmy's mother that Harry Weinter had been told about his son's "trouble"—but she also knew that Weinter had scoffed at the idea of psychiatric treatment for his son.

Now she watched carefully as a sudden look of shock flashed into Alma Weinter's eyes. For the first time the mask of hard composure had dropped from the woman's face.

Then Alma laughed, a short, brittle, mirthless noise like something from an old phonograph record.

"You won't have much luck with Harry," she said. "He's much too busy for this."

Then the woman rose from her chair, hurriedly crumpled the pack of cigarettes and stuffed them into her handbag, mumbled a goodbye to the social worker and was gone. The social worker began to prepare notes for her talk with the doctor. She counted the cigarette butts in the large glass ashtray on her desk. Mrs. Weinter had "smoked" nine cigarettes in less than 20 minutes—lighting them, puffing on them briefly and stubbing them out.

Throughout the interview there had been a forced anger in everything Alma Weinter had said—until the very last.

Then the anger had fallen away for a moment, leaving a naked loneliness in its place.

Jim's second visit to the Child Guidance Center was uneventful. With the exception of a slight interest when the doctor mentioned football, there was nothing to change the boy's customary disdain.

Attempting to make the most of the flickering interest, the doctor tried to talk football again.

"Good game," he said. "I haven't missed a high school game here for three years. Used to play myself when I was in college. You play much football, Jim?"

"Me?" There was a harsh sound of mockery in Jimmy's voice. "I can't play football. I'm too skinny for that," the boy said.

When the boy was gone, the doctor noted Jim's remark carefully. It would pay to find out who had told him he was "too skinny" to play football.

It was not until Jim's fourth visit to the center that something deeply revealing occurred.

Gradually the doctor had broken down the boy's metallic reserve. The third interview had lasted more than an hour. The boy had begun to listen to what the doctor said—but, more important, he had started making comments of his own.

Now and then, when a question was asked, Jim would answer quickly, as before his guard could be brought up again. Other times he would stubbornly refuse to acknowledge the fact a question had been asked.

The fourth interview began agreeably enough with Jim's account of a fight he had had in school with one of the older boys. There had been other such accounts but they had been boastful, defiant and considerably more brief.

This time there was an attitude of objectivity in what Jim said. He seemed, for the first time, to be standing back and taking a look at his own actions and, the doctor hoped, realizing their effect on others.

Jim had a puffy, ugly purple bruise around his right eye to remind him of the fight. It was matched by the purple ugliness of the prose with which he described the boy he had been fighting.

The doctor listened to the story without interrupting Jim. When it was finished he asked the boy: "You've told me just about everything, Jimmy except the reason for the fight. Why did you pick a fight with Bob?"

For a second the solid exterior seemed to be closing Jim off again and the doctor made a mental note that he had used the wrong phrase in saying "pick a fight." Then the look of candor returned to the boy's eyes.

"Because he was bigger than I am," Jim said.

During the fifth interview Jim Weinter suddenly looked at the table on the left side of the small room.

"What are those things?" he asked. The doctor turned and saw that Jim was pointing to a group of plastic figures standing on the top of the table near the sand pile.

The figures were designed for use in "play interviews" with children somewhat younger than Jim. The idea was basically this: the child was given the figures and allowed to give each one a specific role paralleling those of persons in his own life.

There were two large figures—one male, one female—and four smaller ones of varying size. The male figure in most play interviews represents the father; the female, the mother.

Without explaining the actual function of the figures, the doctor explained that they were used to amuse the children who came to the center if the doctor was busy and could not see them immediately.

Jim accepted the explanation. From this point onward, the doctor noticed that the boy's gaze was directed, almost furtively at the figures on the tabletop.

After about five minutes, the doctor stood up and told Jim he had to make a telephone call.

"I'll be back in a couple of minutes, Jim. Find something to do if you like while I'm gone." Then he went out the door which connected the interview room with his own office.

From the office as he dialed his own home phone number he could watch the boy's movement in the next room.

Jim walked quietly over to the dolls. He picked each one of them up and examined it carefully. Then he sat down beside the sand pile, placing the two larger figures in the sand.

The boy's back hid his actions so that the doctor could not tell precisely what was happening then. The doctor replaced the phone in its cradle softly. He waited nearly ten minutes before going back into the room.

Jim was standing near the doorway, putting his coat on. His face betrayed nothing. After the doctor had apologized for the interruption and thanked him for coming, the boy seemed prepared to go.

Then the sound of his mother's voice came from the end of the hallway—harsh and annoyed. "If he's ready to go, Jimmy, hurry up. We're going to be late getting home as it is."

The doctor saw the thin look of stubbornness returning to the boy's face and hurriedly spoke.

Don't be impatient Mrs. Weinter. He'll be right there." There was some surprise on Jim's face. He stood in the doorway for a brief second, then, without warning he held out his hand.

"So long, doc," he said. "See you next week."

The doctor solemnly shook the boy's hand.

When the sound of Jim's footsteps had faded from the hallway the doctor walked to the table where the figures had been standing.

He knew he should not anticipate too much from this brief action—whatever it might be. But

School Combo Discussed By Kiwanis Club

UNION OF three local school districts was the subject discussed at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Stroudsburg yesterday afternoon at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Herbert B. Crane, president of the Stroudsburg school district, gave the financial side of the subject, showing union of financial advantage to Stroudsburg, Stroud Township and Delaware Water Gap involved in the movement.

Earl F. Groner, superintendent of the Stroudsburg district, discussed the educational and efficiency phases of the project. He showed that union of the three districts was a distinct advantage, giving numerous incidences.

Groner stated the present movement had been under study for several years and that all school directors of all three districts and also the school administrations were unanimously in favor of the movement.

He urged support of the union at the polls at the Nov. 2 election, that it would go a long way toward a better bunch of kids.

A. W. Munson, principal of the Stroudsburg High School, was program chairman. He presented as guests Roger Dunning, principal of the elementary schools; Samuel Wells, vice principal, high school; Raymond Harding, principal of Charview Consolidated school; Loring Cramer, president of Stroud Township School Board, and Jack LaBar, president of Delaware Water Gap School Board.

Dr. C. W. Dupue complimented those in charge of the inter-club meeting last week for their efforts. He also read an invitation from the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce to attend the charter night celebration at Penn-Stroud Hotel Tuesday, Nov. 9, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Dupue also announced the local club would sponsor a ladies' night meeting Friday, Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

A delegation of three members of the Newton, N. J., club, W. F. Coe, Ed Quinn and Lee Kymmer were welcomed. They returned the club bell and banner which had been carried off as a joke at the inter-club meeting last week.

Announcement was made that Jerome Elwell was at the Community Hospital, Montclair, N. J., under observation.

Cards urging members to vote Nov. 2 were distributed by John E. Watt.

Other guests welcomed by President Dupue were Arthur Barton, of Portland, and Paul Simmons, of Jefferson, Maine, former resident of the borough.

Rees Delays Publication Of Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (AP)—An inside story of how the government's security-loyalty program has been handled probably will not become available to the public until after the elections.

The report from the Civil Service Commission, is to tell in considerable detail how various phases of the program have applied to individuals. It was asked by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee as a basis for hearings that could lead to a new law.

However, Chairman Rees (R-Kan) of the committee said today at Emporia, Kan., that he did not plan to make the report public immediately upon its receipt. He said:

"Not knowing the exact contents of the report, I do not propose to release it until I have had an opportunity to review it. Also, before it can be released it must be printed and in the hands of members of our committee."

"Just the mechanics of getting these things done will mean that it will be some time after the report is received before it could be released."

Rees favors administering the federal employee security program through a detailed law, rather than under executive orders of the president handled by the executive branch of the government.

New Markets For Coal Urged By Sen. Leader

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP)—Sen. George M. Leader, Democratic candidate for governor, said tonight Republicans have "done nothing" to ease the unemployment problem in southwestern Pennsylvania.

"The people of Fayette, Greene, Washington and Westmoreland counties have seen the soft coal industry reach its lowest ebb," he said. "Men who have spent their lives in the mines are walking the highways and byways looking for work."

Leader, in a prepared speech, told a Democratic rally "Republican politicians" have run out of slogans "designed to make the jobless feel no pain."

"We've got to find new markets for coal," he added. "We've got to put men back to work. As governor, that will be one of my foremost considerations."

The Democratic candidate repeated that the State Unemployment Compensation Fund has been "systematically raided and looted to the detriment of unemployed workers."

"It is a shocking commentary on the political favoritism being practiced by the Fine-Wood administration to know that the big corporations have escaped payment of 200 million dollars into the fund as part of the Republican administration's give-away program to the favored few," he added.

"Consequently, this factor, coupled with the heavy jobless drain upon the fund, is rapidly pushing it to the peril point where payments will be slashed from $30 to $20 weekly."

Leader went on to describe the Republican party's platform pledge on home rule as "a hoax."

"The Harrisburg politicians control the purse string and they exact their pound of flesh for every dollar handed out to local governments," he said. "As governor, I shall see that home rule assumes its true meaning in the relationship of state government toward its political subdivisions."

In another development, Sen. Joseph M. Barr, Democratic state chairman, issued a statement at Harrisburg declaring Atty. Gen. Frank F. Truscott is sitting at the wishing well and dreaming when he talks of "dissension" in the Democratic party.

He said Truscott, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, will have to repeat "more than Republican-planted rumors" to stop the Democrats.

Rival Candidates For U.S. Senate Seat Conducting Slam-Bang Battle In Montana

By JACK BELL

HELENA, Oct. 20 (AP)—Some of the rough and tumble of the Old West pervades a bitter Montana political battle between Republicans and Democrats for a Senate seat that will help determine party control of that body.

Here, where Republicans contend they have one of their best chances in the West to gain on the Democrats, personalities have come close to obscuring issues and the cry of "smear" arises from both camps.

Democratic Sen. James E. Murray, at 78, is bidding strongly for a fourth six-year term in the Senate, to which he first was elected in 1924 to fill out two years of the unexpired term of the late Thomas J. Walsh.

Opposing him in a slam-bang battle is Republican Rep. Wesley A. D'Ewart, 65, a four-term congressman who outran President Eisenhower in the normally GOP 2nd District when Eisenhower carried the state by 51,000 votes in 1952.

Although there are signs the voters are not quite as stirred up as the politicians, D'Ewart and

Murray are throwing harpoons at each other in a campaign that has carried them into every cranny of sprawling Montana, third largest state in area.

Murray has replied to disparaging Republican remarks about his age by dancing about the stage at Democratic rallies and challenging D'Ewart to put on the gloves with him or to meet him in a foot race. D'Ewart retorted that "I would not like to endanger the life of a 78-year-old man."

D'Ewart has challenged Murray to say how he will vote in the Senate session after the election on recommended censure charges against Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.). Murray replied that he wasn't going to prejudice McCarthy but would hear the Wisconsin senator's defense before making up his mind.

The general opinion here is that there is strong support for McCarthy in the state. D'Ewart said he had "never criticized McCarthy," adding that the censure issue would be settled before he can take a Senate seat if he wins.

Republican Gov. J. Hugo Aronson has joined in the fray, calling Murray "the darling of the leftist organizations in Washington which are hell-bent for socialization of this country."

Jack Toole, Democratic state chairman, complained in an interview that GOP Chairman William R. Mackay had declined to join in a fair campaign pledge.

Toole said he regarded the campaigns being put on by Republicans Winfield E. Page and Orvin B. Fjare in the congressional races as clean, but complained about what he said were "slandering personal assaults" on Murray.

Page is opposing Democratic Rep. Lee Metcalf in the normally Democratic 1st District and Metcalf is credited with a decided edge. Fjare is contesting Democrat Leroy H. Anderson for the 2nd District post being vacated by D'Ewart in what is generally regarded as a close race.

D'Ewart blasted at Murray for what the Republican legislator said was a "violation of the fair campaign agreement," accusing Murray of "distorting and misrepresenting my record on veterans legislation." Murray retorted that D'Ewart was guilty of "violating every principle of honesty and decency in this campaign."

West Chester Hit With Four Injuries

WEST CHESTER, Oct. 21 — A manpower shortage in first string material, resulting from injuries, poses a problem for West Chester State Teachers College coach, W. Glenn Killinger, when his Golden Rams go against one of their oldest rivals in a Pennsylvania Teachers College Conference game under lights on Wayne Field at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow.

East Stroudsburg Teachers College, which made its first appearance

ESSTC Pep Parade

EAST STROUDSBURG State Teachers College band and students will parade through East Stroudsburg tonight as part of a pep rally for Friday's "big" football game against West Chester State Teachers College, at West Chester. Today's parade is slated to begin at the college at 6:45 p.m.

ance on the West Chester schedule in 1918, the year that football became an intercollegiate sport for the Rams, will bring a veteran array to bid for their first victory in the series since 1927. West Chester has won its last 13 games from the Mountaineers in rolling up a 14-3 edge in the series.

Four first string linemen and a starting back are on the West Chester casualty list and only three of them are likely to see even limited action. Halfback Walt Buechle and starting end, Ron Gotski, will probably not be in uniform, Coach Killinger said. Co-captain Dick Paciaroni and a pair of veteran guards, Jim Mears and Ken Ober, will be dressed but will appear only for spot plays.

Mullinger will replace his crippled players largely with young talent. Sophomore Joe Motto will be paired with Junior Bill Crozier at the ends, while Sophomore Joe Chibbert and a pair of Freshmen, Bill Berardelli and Jack Brenza will alternate as guards. Eddie Morrell, a Freshman from Prospect Park who distinguished himself in his first starting appearance against Lock Haven last week will take over the halfback job of Buechle.

A Freshman, Joe Russo, from Wilmington, is scheduled to start at center. Veterans Bob Janik and Ray Kantor will be the tackles. John McAnaney, a Senior, will be on the job as quarterback, with Freshman Jack McDonnell at his usual halfback spot and King McLean, a Junior, as fullback.

East Stroudsburg coach, Eugene Martin, a former West Chester High School and West Chester Teachers College backfield star, has a complete array of lettermen to start against the Rams. His first eleven features four Seniors, Quarterback Warren Hoeffner, tackles Carmen Martucci and John Andrews and left guard Jim Revello. Also high on the list of stellar performers are a pair of ends, Lewis Judy, a six-foot Junior and Wilmont Smith, a six-one Sophomore.

West Chester has won its lone conference game to date and stands at 3-2 on the season. The Mountaineers have a 2-1 record in the league and a 3-1 mark for the campaign.

Miami Admits Rule Infraction

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 20 (AP)—The president of the University of Miami, which was placed on probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association's executive council today, said the school "will attempt to live up to the rules in the future."

Dr. Jay S. W. Pearson said the school had paid transportation costs of prospective football players visiting the campus.

"We did and we got the penalty," he said. "We had been partly ignorant of the rules, but now we will attempt to live up to the spirit as well as the letter of the rules."

Regarding football candidate expenses, Dr. Pearson said, "Sometimes they are paid by alumni, sometimes by other methods. Apparently, they can't be paid by the school."

Boston University Tops In East

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Boston University, never before rated among the first 10 in Eastern football, went to the top of the Lambert Trophy ratings this week as it maintained its unbeaten status with a 41-19 victory over Syracuse.

The Terriers moved out one point ahead of Army in the ratings of the committee which names the East's leading team each season. Penn State, the leader for three straight weeks, dropped to fifth place behind Colgate and Boston College after losing to West Virginia. Navy, second last week, went down to seventh after a loss to Pittsburgh.

Dark Becomes Highest Paid Player In History Of Giants

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Alvin Dark today signed a New York Giant contract that made him the highest paid player in the history of the club.

The soft-spoken and highly efficient shortstop, called by Manager Leo Durocher the "heart and guts" of the ball club, affixed his signature to a two-year contract calling for $36,500 a year.

Although no terms were announced, it was reliably learned that the scrappy team captain was given a raise of $5,000 over his $31,500 earnings of 1953 and 1954.

Dark's contract thus exceeds by $500 the previous high of $36,000 given to pitcher Sal Maglie in 1952.

Bill Terry and Mel Ott both made more money but only when they doubled as player and manager.

Although no remarks accompanied Dark's returned contract, it was obvious he must have been pleased since he was the first to sign with the World Champions for 1955.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Roy Campanella underwent surgery on his left hand today with high hopes the operation would restore the devastating batting power that was reduced to a minimum this past season.

Varsity 'S' Club To Hear Ockershausen

GEORGE Ockershausen, assistant football coach at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will be the guest speaker at today's meeting of the Varsity "S" Club in the Stroudsburg Municipal Building. The meeting is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Ockershausen, who is also head baseball and wrestling coach at ESSTC, is the first in a series of speakers who will appear at monthly Varsity "S" Club meetings.

Movies of last Saturday night's football game between Bangor and Stroudsburg High Schools will be shown and refreshments will be served.

The remainder of the meeting will deal with a general discussion of football, past, present and future.

Varsity "S" Club members are all graduates of Stroudsburg High School.

Suspension Fails To Hurt CCNY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—The barring of City College of New York from basketball tournament play by the NCAA will "have no practical effect" on the CCNY sports program, President Buell G. Gallagher said today.

In a statement issued after the NCAA council passed CCNY on probation, an action stemming from the 1950 basketball scandals, Gallagher pointed out that the college no longer plays "big time" basketball and is unlikely to be considered for a 1955 tournament.

The stocky Brooklyn Dodger catcher, undergoing his second operation in less than six months, was under the knife for four hours as doctors first had to remove stubborn scar tissues before the actual operation.

The first operation was performed last May for the removal of bone chips caused by an injury in spring training. After a four-week layoff, Campanella returned to action but it was obvious his effectiveness both at bat and behind the plate had been considerably reduced.

The second surgery, which released adhesions that had captivated the ulnar nerve causing partial paralysis, was performed by Neurosurgeon Dr. Samuel Schenkman with Dr. Lyndon Hill assisting.

"There is an excellent chance that Campanella's hand would return to normal," said Dr. Hill hopefully at the end of the long and tedious operation. "More will be known in from four to six weeks when further tests will be made."

Dodger officials are keeping their fingers crossed that no reaction set in as did after the first operation. Although refusing to say so publicly, more than one Brooklyn official privately feels that Campanella's 207 batting average, together with his comparatively low total of 19 home runs and 51 runs batted in, was a contributing factor in the loss of the pennant to the New York Giants.

Pitcher Enters Hospital

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Oct. 20 (AP)—Brooks Lawrence, 28, a St. Louis Cardinal pitcher who won 12 and lost six games for the National League club the past season, entered Springfield City Hospital today for treatment of a stomach ulcer. Lawrence, a Springfield resident, is expected to be in the hospital four or five days.

NCAA Drops Miami For One Year

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20 (AP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association today slapped one-year probations on the University of Miami (Fla.) and City College of New York.

The NCAA's 18-member council also reprimanded the University of Portland, Ore., and Western Illinois State College at Macomb, Ill.

Today's probations bars CCNY from playing in the 1955 basketball tournament at Kansas City and makes Miami ineligible to "enter athletes or teams in the national collegiate championship events sponsored by the NCAA for the college year 1954-1955."

But, the rub for Miami, whose football team has won four straight games this year, may come at the year's end. Mentioned as a likely candidate for the Sugar Bowl, Miami may find itself on the sidelines for the big post-season game.

Walter Byers, executive director for the NCAA, said earlier in the three-day meetings here that the Sugar Bowl, along with the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference and the Drake Relays, had agreed to bar any team censured or put on a probationary basis by the NCAA.

The University of Portland allegedly violated NCAA regulations by conducting tryouts for 11 prospective basketball players last April under the direction of head coach Art McLarney.

Western Illinois state was reprimanded for participating in the Corn Bowl game at Bloomington, Ill., last year. The game is not recognized by the NCAA extra events committee.

The action against CCNY came as an outgrowth of the basketball scandals which shocked the sports world in 1950 and led to the suspension of head coach Nat Holman. A complete overhauling of the athletic setup at the New York school followed the scandals.

The report of the NCAA committee on rules infractions said that the "high school records of 14 or more athletes admitted to City College of New York during the years 1945 to 1951 were sufficiently and fraudulently changed to establish for admission to the college."

Byers said the ruling affects only CCNY's basketball team and in no way has any bearing on the institution's other athletic teams.

Miami was given the one-year probationary period for allegedly violating NCAA regulations by providing "transportation costs of prospective athletes to visit the campus during at least the past four years" and for conducting "tryouts for prospective football players."

Three Jockeys Suffer Injuries

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 20 (AP)—Three jockeys and their horses went down in spills today in the muddy clay at the Toledo Turf Club during the first race. Then the day's program was called off.

The track's leading rider, Henry Ford, was aboard Liebeskin. John Foggiano drove Oceya, and Jose Prusquet rode Bueha's Boy when they tumbled onto the turf at the Ft. Miami track.

Taken to Maumee Valley Hospital, Ford and Prusquet were released without treatment, and Foggiano was X-rayed for a possible hip injury.

Medicos Step Up Campaign Against Quacks

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20 (AP)—The State Medical society today approved a plan for statewide campaign to "educate the public about the dangers of 'quack' treatments and medicines and those practicing the quackery."

The plan received the approval of the society's board of directors. A spokesman for the society said details will be worked out in the near future.

This is the third such educational drive launched by the state society during its 104th annual meeting here. The meetings conclude on Friday.

Previously, the House of Delegates had approved a proposal calling for preparation of a brochure to be distributed to all doctors' offices for patients' use, explaining hospitalization insurance programs and what are their desirable and undesirable features.

This project is not aimed at promoting any one plan but rather in pointing out to the public what it should look for in such an undertaking the spokesman said.

At the same time the State Medical Society Committee on Public Relations, headed by Dr. Allen W. Cowley, recommended to county societies a six-point public relations program including a "grievance committee to hear complaints from the public."

The program as outlined includes:

- Provision for an emergency call system, the grievance committee, a speakers' bureau supplemented by health education activities, establishment of good working relations with the press, radio and television; building of leadership among society members in county or area voluntary and governmental health organizations and use of all available means to encourage families to secure the services of a family physician.

On the question of the grievance committee, the state group said "The medical profession must be willing to examine the alleged grievances of the public and take the necessary self-corrective action... It tends to answer the criticism that there is no recourse available for the patient when he or she believes a physician to be wrong or that medicine is a 'closed corporation.'"

Stocks Make Sharp Advance

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—Share prices today as much as four points today as the stock market staged its best advance in more than a month.

Spirited bidding brought good-sized gains in the steel, motor, oil, rail, airline and television groups. A long list of specialties also posted sharp advances.

Helping the market along was a good quota of favorable earnings reports and dividend increases. Brokers were inclined to attribute much of the market's strength to the recent advance in the railroad group.

Booby Trap Rules, Folklore Absent In New Postal Manual

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Post Office Department, in a sweeping overhaul of its rules, today made public a new Postal Manual, which it said was stripped of "booby-trap regulations, folklore and dubious advice."

Postmaster General Summerfield said the booklet, in preliminary form, brings together in 268 pages "public-interest material formerly scattered through publications with more than 4,000 pages of close print," and he added:

"We have also restored the use of simple English."

The publication is being distributed to major users of the mails for suggestions before being finalized on Nov. 20 as the official guide for mail operations.

As an example of the changes which the revised manual will make, the department noted the discard of a long-standing rule which said that when a publisher sold subscriptions through an agency, he had to net at least 30 per cent of the advertised subscription price in order to keep the second class mailing privilege.

Under the new rules, the department said, "publishers may obtain subscriptions under agreements with agents without having the terms of the agreement dictated by the post office. We don't care who gets what so long as the publication otherwise fits the second class mailing classification."

Similarly, the announcement said it had junked an interpretation of an 1879 law defining second class mail. This ruled out publications printed on unconventional papers, such as translucent, foil or certain acetate materials.

Here are some other changes: Business houses using metered or printed postage impressions for certain types of mail need only to include their individual permit number in the impression—not the section and number of the law or postal regulation under which the mail is tendered.

There will no longer be a 10 per cent penalty if metered postage happens to show the wrong date of the metering.

Dependents of servicemen transferred from one duty station to another will have all of their mail, including parcel post, forwarded to the new address without additional postage charges. The old regulations provided only for forwarding first class mail and other mail addressed individually to the serviceman himself.

Overseas parcel post rates have been reduced to greatly simplified tables showing acceptable weights, sizes and rates.

Group Calls For Improved CIA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—A special White House study group concluded today that the Central Intelligence Agency can and should be improved in "important areas."

But the group, created by President Eisenhower and headed by famed World War Two flyer James A. Doolittle, found that the agency is doing "a creditable job" in view of its relatively short life and rapid expansion.

The CIA was set up after World War Two to coordinate United States espionage, counter-espionage and other intelligence activities around the world.

Red Cross Gives Aid In Hurricane

FIVE DAYS AFTER Hurricane Hazel cut her swath of destruction throughout the United States, Red Cross chapters and disaster workers were continuing emergency assistance in states affected by floods which followed in "Hazel's" wake and at the same time settling down to the serious operation of helping wind, rain, and flood devastated areas.

Trained disaster staff sent from Eastern Area headquarters are assisting chapters in completing a survey to determine total needs of disaster stricken communities.

Headquarters has been established in the Westmoreland County Chapter in Greensburg, Pa., to direct activities in the Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia floods caused by the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers and their tributaries. More than 5,000 families are already affected in these areas with additional difficulties occurring as swollen creeks continue to overflow.

Hardest hit of the three states is Pennsylvania with 3,385 families affected, Ohio next with 965 families and West Virginia, 842 families. In the first three days after the hurricane the Red Cross housed approximately 3,000 people in 27 shelters and fed more than 3,000.

Red Cross staff assisted in the evacuation of 3,500 people. Thirty-five staff members have been assigned to help chapters and additional staff, particularly case workers and building supervisors, will be sent as needed. A total registration of more than 1,000 families is expected.

DR. AND MRS. Warren B. Rawlings, of Limerick, were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mader and family, while in the Poconos to attend the convention of Penna. State Veterinary Medical Association at Pocono Manor.

Cpl. Richard E. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snyder, of Woodland Road, arrived home Wednesday night, after receiving his discharge from the Army at Fort Meade, Md. Cpl. Snyder served for two years and ten months, with 22 months spent overseas. He received his basic at Breckenridge, Ky., and advanced training at Fort Hood, Texas. He spent Christmas of 1952 at home when he had a delay enroute to Seattle, Wash., before shipping out. He was in the 1st Cavalry division at Hokitko, Japan, then was sent to Pusan, Korea, where he arrived just eight days before the "Cease Fire," and while there was in the eighth Army Artillery.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Haney and children, of New Jersey, spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Haney, of Woodland Road.

Hazel's wild trip caused considerable damage in this area, downing many large trees, disrupting phone and power service. The home of Mrs. Frieda Otten on Woodland Road was damaged slightly by a huge tree which was blown over against the house.

"Laymen's Sunday" was observed at the St. Paul's Reformed Church with the service dedicated to an appeal for the children's hospital in Pusan, Korea. The Brotherhood message, "Brotherhood in Action" was delivered by Leland R. Baker, and the appeal "Ye Did It Unto Me" by Edward Metzgar. LeRoy Kresge gave the invocation and benediction, Lewis Heckman read the Scripture, and George Hahn the morning prayer. Organist was Clarence Werkheiser, soloist was Rev. Cornerstone Ceremonies Conducted EFFORT — Homecoming Services were held recently in Effort Methodist Church. Rev. LeRoy Bernard, pastor, conducted the services afternoon and night with the church filled to capacity.

At the afternoon service, guest speaker was Mrs. Evelyn Shiffer, of East Stroudsburg. She spoke on "Homecoming", using the story of Prodigal Son as an example and stressing the "need of preparation for the Great Homecoming when we will be reunited with those who have gone."

Special music included the Reiders Male Chorus, an orchestra consisting of 12 youths from Bowmanstown, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gildner, duets by Mrs. Fay Warner and Mrs. June Feller, junior choir and mixed adult choir of the host church.

Following the service the congregation assembled outside, where Rev. Bernard, assisted by John Rinker, Herbert Gower, Kenneth Rinker and Clark Smith laid the cornerstone for the new addition of a Sunday School room.

Guest speaker at night was Rev. Thomas Young, a former pastor here, now of Cornwall. A combined choir of Reiders, Tannersville, and Wesley Chapel, under direction of Miss Ada Mae Frailey, sang several selections, and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Werkheiser of Scotrun sang two duets.

Members of the church entertained at supper a number of out of town guests who attended both services. The offering, to be used to benefit the building fund, was $160.

For the first time, the jewels of Queen Isabella and other Columbus era mementoes are on display. They are valued at five million dollars. In Again visitors will make a pilgrimage to the tomb of Columbus in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo. Each Columbus Day, pageantry is staged in this oldest city in the New World to keep his name alive in memory. Body of Columbus rests in an ornate, wrought iron casket.

Dock Strike Spreads To Southampton

LONDON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Britain's creeping paralysis of waterfront strikes spread today to the great Atlantic terminus of Southampton, where the liners Queen Elizabeth and America prepared to sail on the tide for New York.

Some 2,000 dockers at Southampton pulled a snap walkout today even though they had voted at a mass meeting last night against joining in sympathy with the strikes which have crippled other major British ports.

Even as workers loading cargo and stores aboard the 83,000-ton Cunard liner dropped their tools, Queen Mother Elizabeth boarded the world's biggest ship for her visit to America.

Non-striking stevedores carried the Queen's luggage aboard.

More than 43,000 of the island kingdom's 76,000 dock workers now are on strike. The 17-day walkout threatens the nation's food supplies. Unless there is a break within a week the government plans to call out troops to handle rotting foodstuffs on more than 200 idled ships.

Prime Minister Churchill met with his Cabinet again today and heard Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton outline the mounting seriousness of the strike's effect.

Between 126 to 140 million dollars worth of imports were delayed, as were between 84 and 98 million dollars of exports. In all, between 210 and 238 million dollars worth of cargoes were blocked.

Second prize went to Karin Hultman, of Rochester, N. Y.

FCC Against Censorship Of TV Shows

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission took the position today it would be "dangerous" and undemocratic for the government to censor television shows.

FCC member Rosal H. Hyde submitted that view, on behalf of the commission, to a Senate subcommittee seeking to determine whether TV crime shows increase juvenile delinquency. Earlier, the subcommittee heard:

1. A witness protest that TV was pouring "mental poison" into the minds of children.

2. Two television executives contend adventure and crime programs have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency.

Mrs. Clara Logan of Los Angeles, president of the National Assn. for Better Radio and Television, said "mental poison" came from TV crime programs and that nothing but television "could accomplish such a saturation of violence."

She saw no need for government censorship, but said parents who feel some programs are hurting their children can withhold their support from broadcasters and sponsors of the programs.

Robert H. Hinckley, a vice president of the American Broadcasting Co., said:

"I would like to state with great conviction that I do not believe television is anything remotely approaching a factor in our problem."

He said Russia, with limited television facilities, and New Zealand, which has none, both have major juvenile delinquency problems.

Miss Grace Johnson, in charge of judging and editing ABC program scripts, said she believes the TV may even help to prevent some delinquency among children.

Such shows, she said, "serve as a release for their hostility and aggressiveness which without an escape might manifest itself in physical violence."

Hyde testified: "We cannot agree with those critics of radio and television who believe, however sincerely, that the only way to secure the highest quality program service is to provide a group of government officials with a blue pencil."

"We believe that it would be dangerous, as well as contrary to our democratic concepts, for a few officials in Washington . . . to have such power."

Miss Edith Love, who helps plan the content of children's hour programs for the British Broadcasting Corp., said she doubts that any of a series of American TV films seen by the subcommittee yesterday "would have found its way into any of our programs." But she added:

"I must stress that no one in Great Britain has ever seriously contended that TV or radio by itself can either cause or cure juvenile delinquency."

Here is a puzzle designed to help you find your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and climb every one of your key number, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked letters give you.

Are You Opposed to the Youth Program Of the Y. M. C. A.?

Or the Programs of any of the 12 COMMUNITY CHEST AGENCIES?

We Don't Think So!

The Central Labor Union of Monroe County has taken action to abstain from supporting the 1954-55 Community Chest campaign because of the labor dispute involving the construction of the YMCA building. We feel that the people who contribute to the Community Chest should know that any monies collected by the Chest never have and never will go into the building fund of the YMCA or any capital investment fund of any of the 12 agencies of the Chest.

Monies collected by the Community Chest are paid for operational costs only--we mean costs which are incurred by the agencies in carrying out their programs for the health and welfare of the citizens of our community.

We do not believe that any person or group is opposed to the YMCA program of character building for the youth in our community. This vital program has continued for the past year despite the fact that there was no YMCA building.

We should like to repeat that the monies collected by the Community Chest will be used for the SERVICES RENDERED people of Monroe County by the 12 agencies of the Chest. Therefore, we are appealing to ALL citizens of Monroe County to support your Community Chest--remembering--

EVERYBODY GIVES — EVERYBODY BENEFITS!

MONROE COUNTY COMMUNITY CHEST
